Jumping Trolley Leaves Thousands Stalled

HOPS TRACK AND RAMS POLE NEAR KENMORE

Whole Intown Line Blocked as Cars Packed With Workers Pile Up

Thousands of "L" road patrons were delayed more than half an hour on their way to business during the rush hour today when a Watertown trolley, inbound to Park street, left the rails at Granby street, in the Back Bay and crashed into a trolley pole, knocking it down.

Passengers on the crowded car were frightened and shaken up but no one as far as could be learned was injured. Traffic over inbound and outbound rails was suspended for more than an hour after the crash.

There was great confusion among hundreds of passengers on cars following that which left the rails, until inspectors and crews of other trolleys effected a turn about and re-routed intown over Harvard avenue and Beacon street.

More than half an hour passed before the long line of stalled trolleys was in slow motion over the detour.

The derailment occurred at 7:35 and it was 8:35 before the rails were cleared at Granby street permitting resumption of traffic there.

CARMEN VOTING FOR OFFICERS

Boston Elevated carmen of Local 133 are electing officers today at the polls in the old Franklin Schoolhouse near Dover and Washington streets.

The principal contest is for first class Agent to which Timothy J. Ryan seeks a second term. He is opposed by Matthew J. McLaughlin.

For the first time in ten years John J. Lyons is opposed for assistant secretary by a man, Miss May Donohue of the Rapid Transit Division was eliminated this year at the primaries. John H. McNulty, also of the Rapid Transit, supplanted her in an effort to defeat Lyons.

HARVARD PI ETAS WILL PLAY "FOOL FOR SCANDAL"

"The Fool for Scandal," an original musical comedy, has been chosen for production by the Pi Eta Society of Harvard. The book is written by Read Wright of Belmont, most of the music by Lollor W. Grossman of Milwaukee, and the lyrics by William H. Hackness of New York, all Harvard students and members of the society. Performances will be staged next month with Dave Lord as coach.

Grossman, a track athlete; Joe Crosby, the Jamaica Plain star; and C. H. Morgan, 24, and Dan Wood are the Harvard undergraduates cast for big parts in the comedy.

CARDINAL AT 66 HOLDS FAITH IN LOVE OF MAN

By JAMES WALSH
William Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, Prince of the Holy Roman Catholic Church, renowned the world over for his remarkable achievements, beloved by priests and people of the great archdiocese over which he rules, admired and respected by leaders in all walks of life, is 66 years old tomorrow.

Already, felicitations are pouring in to him from every corner of the earth. Each year the Pope, from the sovereign pontiff, rulers of various countries and from leaders in their respective spheres every where.

In an exclusive interview given to the Boston Evening American, the dean of the hierarchy in this country gave a wonderfully interesting and intimate view of his life and the things uppermost in his mind and heart—his work.

His Eminence finds many tragic things in life, things that give him pain and cause him grief. "They are never wanting," he says. "I take the greatest pleasure in the growth and development of the diocesan institutions, particularly the organizations of men and women whose chief purpose is the alleviation of poverty and distress."

DUTY TO POOR

To every new pastor he has appointed to the Cathedral, his own church, since he came, he has said, "Remember that our first duty is toward the poor."

The writer found the Cardinal at his home in Brookline, reading Chesterton's "The Everlasting Man." In splendid health, his complexion clear and his eyes sparkling and displaying the vigor he has at-

Man Found Dead Standing at Sink

Alfred McInnes, 38 and single, was found dead today in a lodging house in Hanson street, South End, standing at the kitchen sink, to which his hands were locked in a death grip.

The body was found by Mrs. Elizabeth Keating, the landlady.

HUB TO KEEP WARM 2 DAYS

With not a cloud in the sky and no signs of cold weather reported from the entire country, clear, warm weather is predicted for Boston for the next two days at least.

A sudden northeast wind arising over Lake Erie yesterday banished the storm scheduled to hit here last night and as condition now stand no disturbances are evident. Buffalo, N. Y., has seven inches of snow, but weather officials say it is a freak local disturbance and will have no bearing on New England.

Cleveland, Detroit and other nearby cities report only the mildest snow flurries.

Springlike temperature continues in Boston. At 10 o'clock the official thermometer registered 43 degrees, 2 degrees above the minimum recording for the night.

Gas Kills Seven Children

Lengen, Westphalia, Germany, Dec. 7 (A.P.)—Seven children, aged from one to three, were found asphyxiated in the children's hospital today. Death was caused by coal gas.

BOOKKEEPER TO ESCAPE COURT PROSECUTION

Worcester, Dec. 7.—Nearer $40,000 than the $20,000 estimated at first will be the shortage in the accounts of Walter G. Higgins, bookkeeper who vanished last October, the police announced today.

Higgins was bookkeeper for the E. G. Higgins Co. and is now believed by the police to be in St. Louis.

The probability of Higgins being arrested for his alleged defalcation failed today when Superintendent James J. Casey of the Detective bureau, declared that an agreement for restitution made between Higgins and Francis E. Higgins, president of the company, made the case a civil matter and not criminal.

Under this agreement, according to Superintendent Casey, the bookkeeper turned over to Higgins a large amount of property in restitution.

The fact that Higgins later found the property not to be worth as much as represented does not alter the civil status of the case under the agreement, according to Casey.

Superintendent Casey declared that Higgins may be able to get out without for Higgins' arrest, but the police official does not believe it will hold should Higgins be taken to trial.

The superintendent has refused to set without Higgins first securing a warrant.

IRISH BOUNDARY BILL BEFORE COMMONS

London, Dec. 7 (A.P.)—Premier Baldwin today formally introduced in the House of Commons today the first boundary bill, giving effect to the recent agreement reached among representatives of Ulster, the Free State and Great Britain.

The bill was given its first reading.

Dublin, Dec. 7 (A.P.)—The Dail Eireann today passed the first reading of the bill to amend the Anglo-Irish treaty by inclusion of the amendments agreed upon at the recent London conference.

The standing orders were suspended to enable the second reading to be taken tonight.

CHAMBERLAIN AND BRIAND IN LINE FOR NOBEL PRIZE

London, Dec. 7 (A.P.)—The Exchange Telegraph's Geneva correspondent understands that, although the Nobel Peace Prize will not be awarded this year, it is intended to make a joint award in 1926 of the last three years' prize allotments to Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, and Aristide Briand, French Premier, in recognition of their work leading up to the Locarno agreement.

M'GLONE IN RACE FOR MARSHAL AT HARVARD

Additional nominations for senior class officers announced at Harvard today are those of Joe McGlone, Natick football star, for marshal; Donald Georgey of Newton Highlands and John Walters, the Winchester track athlete, for treasurer; and Edward J. Metzler of Chicago, in charge of the recent debate on football, which was held in the Harvard Union.

THUGS, BEWARE OF MULLINS

Two would-be highwaymen ran into a carter when they chased Thomas Mullins, driver of a Boston Fall River motor bus, as a victim at Dedham today.

Mullins was alone in the big car, and stopped when he saw a truck stalled in front of him. A man leaped from behind the truck and demanded Mullins' money, but the driver promptly knocked him down with a meat chisel in the jaw. A second man leaped to the fray, and he and Mullins were "mucking it" when the first highwayman recovered and joined the melee. Mullins continued to hold his own.

Finally the two decided that what use was too tough and they drove away.

SOCIETY'S A BUSINESS, FAY KING DISCOVERS

By FAY KING.

Some people may be under the impression that there is a vast difference between the business girls and the one in which the society belle moves, but if you will give the matter a little thought, you will find that they are not only much the same, but almost identical in their methods.

Both aim for success!

The business girl's success is measured by the money she earns and the responsibility of her position. The society girl's success is measured by the money she makes and the position she holds in society.

Let a society girl be "studied" from society and she has as much time getting back her position as a working girl would.

A girl who works may be asked for references—with the society girl has her social and financial ratings that are well looked into by prospective customers for a title. Etiquette is merely good business methods in social circles.

New accounts in the business world are no more easily sought than new connections in the world of society! The follow-up letter of the business office is sent with much the same haste as the follow-up note in accepted stationery by the society woman who sees in the one addressed a prospective customer, for teas, dinner and theatre parties.

The close talk kept on business topics is also kept in the social bookkeeping.

Just as the business girl must be tactful and patient with the irascible and unreasonable customer whose account is worth keeping, so must the society girl be tactful and patient with the boresome and irritating connection that is worth cultivating! Business and society both call for business wits and wisdom.

The business girl and the society girl could get together any day and talk shop and find they have much in common.

The want-ad and the society note are much the same, if you can read between the lines!

LIBRARY MOST COLORFUL ROOM IN THE HOME

By HENRY R. PENNELL.

Of Pennell, Gibbs & Quiring Co.

In the character of the rooms, a library combines both formal and informal traits. The hall, drawing room and dining room are necessarily formal in architectural treatment and decoration. The living room and library respond in character to their use, and more closely represent the personality of the owner.

By gradual evolution the library has developed certain characteristics which are now considered fundamental. Bookcases are no longer movable pieces of furniture, but are an integral part of the room. Often they occupy the entire wall space. Book bindings are still valuable as decoration, although not necessarily the artistic value of those of Italy and France during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

No room in the house is more colorful than the library. Often of dark, rich oak, with rugs, hangings and furniture coverings in deep colorings, there is established an atmosphere of many traditions.

There is always a comfortable feeling in a well designed library. The furniture alone looks inviting and the arrangement of tables and lamps is especially pleasing. There is comfort as well as beauty in the chair and sofa, and the French saying "that it is necessary to suffer in order to be beautiful" need never apply to home furnishings.

When choosing gifts for friends and family—let us help you

You are already choosing your Christmas gifts, we know. Some of you have already visited our store. We urge all of you to come in as soon as you can.

You will find us gift counselors as well as gift merchants. Our business was founded and is maintained principally to serve those who wish to give. So our life study is to select those things that will please those who give and those who receive.

Bring your Christmas list with you. Opposite each name on it write the approximate amount you wish to spend. Then give us a descriptive word about each person, and we will show you what we believe will please each one.

You will find that your friends enjoy receiving gifts with our name on the box. Their families for over one hundred and twenty-five years have known the delightful thrill of opening packages from our firm which contained attractive gifts of those things most wanted in their day and time. It costs no more to buy from us, and we believe that there is an extra dividend in the friendship in which our name is held.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT Boston Society Busied With 'Animated Advertising'

BOSTON'S FEMINE youth and beauty, merrily enrolled in the Animated Advertising ranks to grace the Opera House boards next Saturday, are going through the delightful throes of last moment fittings, as scene painters, decorators, artists, designers, modistes and hat makers give ecstatic finishing touches to their creations.

AD OF GOTHAM luminaries was invoked for the Lever Brothers ensemble to surround and enhance Miss Ella Swilling's delicately etched beauty. Miss Grace Ripley, in whose hands rests the all-important master of gown designing, went over purposely to the Big City to see Willie Fogarty and Murray Anderson.

BETWEEN THEM A glorious stage set is arranged, a gorgeous silver metal cloth combined with painting on canvas, as soon as it's completed it comes to Boston by special messenger, to take its place as chief feature in the "Adventure" program.

AS THE FEMINE centerpiece, Miss Swilling wears a costume of silver and ermine beneath a beautiful wrap of ermine, "colored" velvet decorated in hand painted design—altogether such magnificence as to make the audience gasp in admiration.

VIVID, TROPICAL SCARLETS, greens, yellows and oranges are the West Indian background against which bright, plumed, "famous" and Miss Jean Borden, debutante daughter of the Spencer Borden of Fall River, strolls about in a chic eclectical pink beach frock.

THIS INSPIRED ENSEMBLE is the Clyde Line's contribution to Animated Advertising with Act II John, a student of the Boston Normal Art School, burning the midnight oil of creative genius as designer-in-chief. Miss Borden, in ermine, champagne, is just the choice for central figure.

ANOTHER STAGSHIP LINE, this time the Eastern, is down for a Florida beach scene, with Mrs. Walter Amory (Missy Cole), adorned in shining strand in awe-inspiring sports attire, and such accompaniment as tarpon, pompano and blue blue ocean, lending atmospheric color and finish.

MISS ROSAMOND HOLLAND is the Maid of Cayton, the flavor of the tea, the flame out of an enormous richly decorated tea caddy, bigelow, Kennard and Company put Miss Virginia Hollister, a handsome bud of the season, into a gold frock with a striking headpiece.

IT WILL BE A GLINTING, sparkling chandelier effect, as handsome as the bud who wears it. The Backrach studio presents for the dedication of the audience an "Animated" diaphanotype in beautifully embossed leather case.

LATEST ADVICES from the powers that be, Madame F. Reed Estabrook and Prescott B. Rice, name Mrs. Thomas E. P. Rice as the diaphanotype lady, and charming one she'll be. Equally attractive but different, in this riding habit which she wears so well, Miss Theodora Ayer is a Wright and Ditson sport girl.

THOSE WHO KNOW their literary London will delight in the Coffee Shop scene, done by Chase and Garbun in recital of Ben Jonson's seventeenth century favorite, "The Merry Wives of Windsor." Miss Helen Stone and Miss Dorothy Fowling are "Cressida" and "Bianca," and Mrs. Francis Bacon Letthrop is a waitress.

SHE WEARS A LOVELY rose taffeta with pointed bodice, as she served the fragrant brew from the "little brown berry" to the celebrated pair. This perfect maidens part a portion of the numbers in the Adventure is sure to be a huge success.

AS MRS. FREDERICK B. WHITE, with Mr. Whitwell, continue to linger on in Paris in that continental environment, the downed Americans find so much to their liking in all probability there will be the Cinderella Dance on the late season calendar this Winter.

MRS. DANIELSON, with whom Mrs. Whitwell arranges these extremely individual dances (and really are Cinderella affairs and end at the stroke of twelve) is domiciled for the Winter at her town residence in lower Commonwealth avenue, having come in from her farm in Medfield.

WITH CHARACTERISTIC generosity, Edwin Jackson Holmes adds to the Museum of Fine Arts' largest collection a masterpiece of the late artist and one which ranks in the very forefront of all Bertha's achievements. It is the Head of Christ done in oil, a study truly sublime.

IN 1825 IN the Bazaar Memorial exhibition just now drawing hundreds of admirers to Boston's Shrine of Art, both Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, by the way, are keenly interested in the success of the enterprise to be given in the tapestry gallery of the Museum, a specially new departure in Museum management.

activities and, therefore, specially interesting.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY P. UPHAM HARRIS (Missy Webster) are coming home for the Christmas holidays, so I'm told, and there is sure to be the very fullest of family reunions beneath the hospitable Edwin Sider Webster roof in all probability the Chestnut Hill one.

THE HARRIS have been moved about thirty hunting grounds of the butternut, among their brilliant wedding back in the Autumn. As Polly Webster, the bride, was a leader of smart and circles here—coming out with much relief and stepping into front place in Junior League ranks.

MRS. CORNELIA HALLOWELL made a charming substitute bridesmaid in the Penno-McLafferty wedding, wearing (directly into Mrs. Louis B. McLaughlin's shoes at the last moment. The McGee's small daughter was III and Mrs. McLaughlin needs must stay at the baby's bedside.

THE WIDE FELT and velvet chapeau and straight line frock was most becoming bridesmaid attire, setting off splendidly Miss Hallowell's bronzed type of skin, good looks. Altogether the processional was most eye-satisfying, and the bride as radiant as any old Trinity ever sheltered.

PRINCE OF WALES TO VISIT BELFAST AND DUBLIN

London, Dec. 7 (A.P.)—The recent suggestion that the Prince of Wales visit Ireland in 1926 has solidified itself into a report that such a mission is being arranged. Under the new boundary settlement signed in London, Northern Ireland will obtain a sum of sufficient size to build a new Parliament house in Belfast. It is understood the Prince will lay the foundation stone. There is also a rumor that the Prince will make an official visit to the Free State.

MILADY GOES SHOPPING

Shoe products in snake, ostrich, elephant, seal and alligator skins have at last made their appearance in this city. While women of other sections have been wearing this type of footwear for some time, Boston women have been discarding the old and flat-heeled, broad-toe walking shoe and donning a more substantial, good-looking and different.

Now they have it. Unlike the daintiness of the satin and colored brocade with their still heels and rhinestone guided toes, these skin shoes are substantially fitted for use. But in an effort to make them semi-dress, the models include the pump, buckled or strapped with Cuban heel.

Prices range from fourteen to eighteen dollars. The skins have been dyed to match Milady's costume.

Indicative of the return of the high-waisted princess dress is the chemise to be worn for this evening subterfuge. Pastel and bright shades, the rainbow hues can be obtained in all the shops carrying this dainty model which only the slim figure can wear with grace.

And speaking about the daintiness of lingerie, lovers of the extremely sheer, diaphanous models can buy their vests and step-ins and all the rest of the entrancing wardrobe in shortness. All shades even to black, and should one go further, they are making ensemble underwear.

The December "newness" is as gently named because it includes the brassiere, corset and chemise bottom all in one, is moderately priced at $12.75.

And because of the Yuletide spirit fast taking hold of us we drift to toys. Even in this game the search for the new and unusual has also resulted in a novelty toy for young and old. The Kangaroo Sprinkler is the name and follow the leader, leap frog, jumping rope, running are revolutionized by this invention.

Stated according to weight, 75 to 100 pounds, costs $3.75. As its name implies it enables one to rise to better heights, jump and run, leap and play with more vim and vigor.

THREE FIREMEN OVERCOME IN E. WALPOLE

Three firemen were overcome in a fire at a home in East Walpole, Mass., today, when a fire broke out in a garage attached to the house.

The house, owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. Walpole, is situated on a hill overlooking the town. The fire broke out in the garage, which was attached to the house.

After the fire had been extinguished, the three firemen were overcome by the fumes. They were taken to the hospital, where they are now recovering.

Thomas Hardy, 1st time, was also overcome by the fumes. He was taken to the hospital, where he is now recovering.

'CUT OFF' FOR ALL FEDERAL TAXPAYERS

Incidentally, the bill provides that the House and Senate have set March 1 as the date for enactment of the measure into law so that this benefit may be taken advantage of in the payment of first installments of the income tax due March 1.

Although unanimously ordered reported to the House, the committee report on the bill contained separate statements of "additional views" of Representative Bailey of Illinois and of Representative Duggan of Tennessee, Democratic members of the committee.

Both Mr. Bailey and Mr. Duggan pointed out the general provisions of the measure, but both took exception to the provision increasing the personal exemption and cutting the maximum surtax rate from 40 to 20 per cent. They proposed, instead, that the present exemption be retained, and that the maximum surtax rate be increased from 20 to 40 per cent. They also proposed a maximum rate of 40 per cent, and Mr. Duggan proposed a maximum rate of 40 per cent.

Three new senators, La Follette of Wisconsin, Robinson of Indiana and Williams of Missouri, took the oath in group.

With all eyes fixed inquiringly upon him, Mr. La Follette, the youngest man to sit in the Senate in more than half a century, was escorted to the chair by his colleague, Senator Leonard of Wisconsin. After he had signed the roster, he was greeted by a number of senators, first among them Senator Bailey of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Organization of the Senate was completed with the election of Edwidge five minutes, the Senate adjourned until noon tomorrow, out of respect for the memorial of four members who died during the recess—La Follette of Wisconsin, Robinson of Indiana, Ladd of North Dakota, and Spencer of Missouri.

Similarly the amount of income on which the credit of 20 per cent. for "earned income" could be applied had been increased from $10,000 to $20,000.

The bill cuts the normal tax rates from 2 to 1 1/2 per cent. on the first $4,000 of taxable income, from 4 to 3 per cent. on the next $4,000 and from 6 to 5 per cent. on the remainder of income.

While cutting the maximum surtax from 40 to 20 per cent., the reductions on other brackets of the graduated surtax scale, which starts at one per cent. on $10,000, are made only on those involving income of $40,000 and over.

Reduction of the inheritance tax rates from a maximum of 40 per cent. to 20 per cent. and increase in the credit to be allowed in federal inheritance taxes from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent., eventually will reduce by one-half the present yield from the levy of $100,000,000 annually, the report said.

The decrease in revenue from inheritance taxes by virtue of these reductions, however, will be gradual, it said, with the loss next calendar year being negligible and in following years amounting to about $100,000,000. The report points out that the States by use of the credit provision would be able to make use of this tax without additional cost to its citizens.

Referring to the repeal of most of the excise and occupational taxes, including the so-called "nuisance" taxes, Chairman Stearns explained: "These taxes are not equitable in their application and produce little revenue."

The tax on cigars, which was reduced, "was so high as to depress the business and reduce the revenue to the government," the report declared. The tax on jewelry, also repealed, was described as "difficult to collect and burdensome to operators."

Repeal of the tax on automobile trucks was noted because it was a tax "wholly on business," the report said, and the levies on automobile tires and parts, also repealed, were declared taxes on "consumption."

Repeal of the passenger car tax could not be considered, the report stated, "as it would make the total reduction carried by the bill altogether too large." The rate was cut from 5 per cent. to 2 per cent., with a provision allowing a refund to automobile dealers of the amount of difference between the old and new taxes for the cars on hand thirty days after the bill became law, the effective date of the new automobile tax.

More Strength to the Arm of Governor Pinchot

Governor Pinchot may count on the widest popular support for almost anything he can do to whip the anthracite operators into sense. Pennsylvania politics has often been indulgent of this monopoly. It has been as powerful as it is autocratic. But the welfare of Pennsylvania now requires that it be curbed.

The Governor's plan to call a special session of the Legislature will be supported by public sentiment in Pennsylvania. It will certainly be supported here in New England and in New York. Nor will it be supported exclusively by the miners and their friends. It will be supported as well by enlightened capitalists.

The anthracite monopoly is a disgrace to modern business. With feudal arrogance this little group of bankers, landowners, railroad managers and corporation riggers have for years defied any effort to loosen their selfish grip on the only large body of anthracite in the United States. The ruthless and brutal methods they employed to build their monopoly are equalled only by the dark and devious interlocking of interests with which they keep it together.

The miners were wrong when they refused a general arbitration in the first place. The operators are far more wrong in refusing Governor Pinchot's proposals now. They are so wrong that the Governor is justified in using the police power of the State, as it was used in this and other States against oppressive landlords. That is a power that only a State can use.

The powerful connections of the anthracite operators have hitherto been able to prevent any effective interference with their monopoly, which the United States Supreme Court has found to be criminal.

Governor Pinchot's proposals were fair because they went right to the heart of the anthracite problem. That is the excessive profits which everyone knows are surreptitiously made between the mine and the consumer.

The bulk of those profits are made in the State of Pennsylvania. They are made by collectors of royalties, by railroad-owned mining and marketing corporations, by all sorts of secret organizations.

But the actual operation of this huge machine is almost wholly in the State of Pennsylvania. That's where the police power can be made effective.

What will Governor Pinchot do about it? His own public statement is that "the anthracite operators have declared war."

Will Governor Pinchot take such a declaration of war against the public standing up or sitting down?

Out of Step With Uncle Sam

New England Highways Need National Markers

If yellow and black signs meant danger on every National Highway the country over, what would you think of one section which marked EVERY telegraph pole on its highways YELLOW AND BLACK?

You would probably think that the lone section was trying to preserve its originality at the expense of the safety of its citizens. That is exactly what New England has done.

It isn't as if New England had no National Highways to confuse motorists about the meaning of a yellow and black highway sign. There are six great National Highways running through New England.

The Committee on New England Affairs of the Boston Chamber of Commerce has come out in favor of New England's highways conforming as quickly as possible to the marking system on National Highways.

This system divides the markers into two classes: markers for information, which are yellow, and markers for danger, which are black and yellow. Black and yellow has proved itself by scientific tests to be the most effective color combination known for this purpose. It should be reserved for danger alone.

Here is an easy, sensible way for the New England branch of the American family to take a long step forward by catching step with Uncle Sam. National markers for New England highways will give better highway service throughout this corner of the country.

Better Highway Service for New England means better transportation, more tourists, more trade, and increased prosperity for the six New England States.

Rejoicing and Worrying

Old England Doesn't Know Whether to Laugh or Cry

Britain rejoicing over peace, is worrying about population. At the present rate, increase of British population will have stopped in seven years, and no more superfluous young Englishmen will be ready to send out to the far flung frontiers of the British Empire.

A few earnest souls ask for birth control, while thousands cry "race suicide." The British fear that their population will be stabilized at 45,000,000, only 5,000,000 more than the French population.

This country ought to welcome desirable immigrants, while Europe still has some of them to spare.

England and all western Europe, for the moment, are as happy as some gentleman that has reformed, swearing off drink, cigars, "everything." The Locarno Treaty is signed, there is to be no more war, and all Europe happily united in peace is the motto. May the motto last, and stand the ups and downs of race jealousies until the end of time.

Meanwhile, there is danger of trouble between England and Turkey. There is oil in Mosul and Turks threaten to seize that territory, if the league decides that Britain should have it.

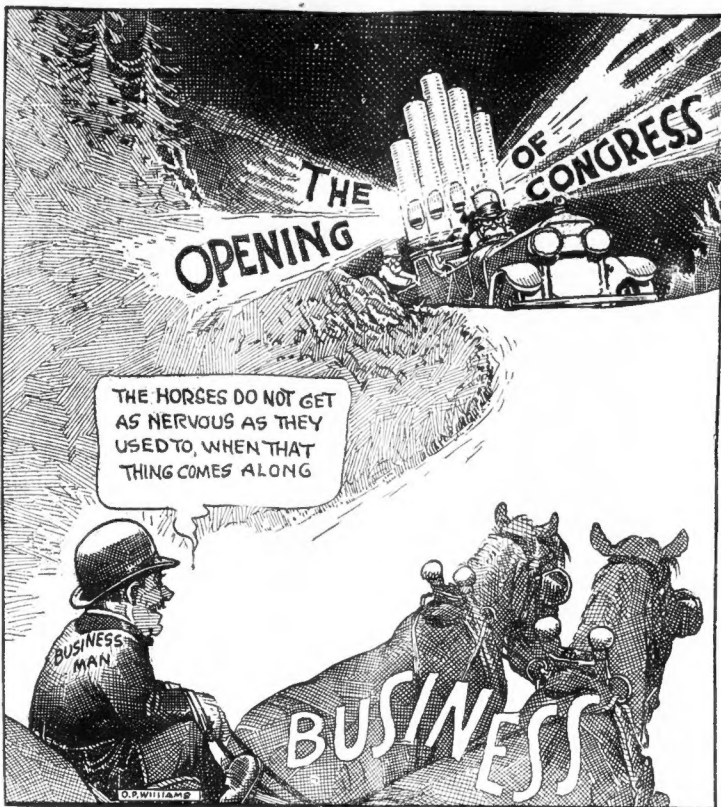

The worst is that Turkey has an army of 300,000, well armed, trained in the last war, and THE TURKS FIGHT. The British fight also, but the young Britisher, as he puts it, is "fed up."

Ask him "Would you like to embark for Turkey and camp in the trenches for awhile?" and his reply would be something shocking.

Kemal Pasha, head of the Turks, and Mussolini, head of the Italians, both realize that other peoples in Europe have had all the fighting they want. Kemal and Mussolini on the other hand are just getting warmed up, and that gives them an advantage in argument or negotiations.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

The Driver Isn't Worrying

THERE will be plenty of whooping and bellowing in Congress this week. But it is a notable fact that the prospect does not disturb business.

The wise and steady hand of President Coolidge is generally counted on to make good the policy he outlined before the New York State Chamber of Commerce two weeks ago.

That policy is that as long as business behaves Government will help and not hinder it.

The meeting of Congress used to be the signal for a flurry in the stock market, for a general hesitancy of business to make commitments.

That symptom is wholly lacking today.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A BROOKLYN man has such a hard job keeping servants that he gets his stenographer to help him with the housekeeping.

SHE cooks his breakfast and then rubs down to the office.

AT eight o'clock she opens his eyes, and at nine thirty she opens his mail.

THE poor girl and so muddled that she tries to tie the toast and make carbon copies of the hot shoes.

SHE got so excited one morning that she tried to write a letter to the carpet sweeper.

HER employer bought a desk with a sink in it so that she could do the dishes at the office.

SHE was so rushed one afternoon that she missed all the correspondence with a pen.

AND she wrote the worst of it. She told the letters home and mailed up the knives and forks.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

MOTHER has been looking me over and she likes the way I'm living. So she has elected me to check some dirt for her.

"Old-fashioned housekeeping was the link!" declares Mildred. It made stupid, unhappy drudges of women, rubbed them of every spark of intelligence and alarm and aged them long before their time.

"You won't catch me wasting my life to write stories!"

BUT BELIEVE ME, MILLY, THOSE OLD GIRLS MEANT SOMETHING TO THE WORLD. THEY LIVED IN THEY HAD A PUNCH IN THEIR LIVES THAT MANY OF OUR MODERN LADY DILLETANTES LACK.

They filled a mighty urgent need and they won a large and definite respect for their attainments.

THIS PRIZE FRUIT CAKE: BAKER OF 1935 HAD IT ALL. AFTER THE CARBIDE CLAPS OP 1935. And as one who has filled both jobs, let me tell you Sister—

It takes more downright spirit and originality to be a housewife than to be a novelist.

Great Aunt Milieus, note—don't think it was part of the sacred law of the Frigates' war it has been handed down in the family.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

THE kind of motion picture that a woman loves best is the one that makes her feel sorry for herself.

When the wings of love are fluttering, there is no use trying to "first add," the most humane and merciful thing to do is to put it out of his misery, quickly.

Before marriage, looking for a husband is a sporting proposition—after marriage, it is just a waiting game.

Sometimes a new wife succeeds in "reforming" her husband so completely that his friends are suspicious of him.

Most men are willing to admit that they owe their wives a lot—even though they may regard it in the light of the French National Debt.

Three Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

AMONG the Sepiks of New Guinea, the business of coming of age is a painful process. All through childhood the little boys live in fearful awareness that when their rough maturity they will have to undergo the torture of tattooing.

The Sepiks are a head-hunter tribe living on the Sepik River of New Guinea. Every full-grown man among them is scar-tattooed all over his back, his shoulders and his arms.

On the shoulders the tattooing usually takes the form of a monogram or crest. But for the rest it is simply rows and rows of great raised scars as thick as a pencil.

The work is beautifully done. It is neat and clean and even. As a rule, the pattern consists of many lines of the scars, running down the back.

Until the tattooing is accomplished, the boy is not considered a man. He is not admitted to the club house of the men and he is not eligible for marriage. He must pass through his test of endurance before he is recognized as a full-grown person.

That the tattooing is an endurance test is not to be doubted for an instant. It is a trial by torture just as surely as the trials by sword of the Middle Ages. Many of the boys die under the knife, still others die later of the effects of the wounds. But the strong survive and there are as many as the trials by sword.

For several weeks after the trial the boys are shut up in complete seclusion, lying on their faces and scarcely able to move. A day or two after the operation, red sap is rubbed into the wounds to make them more striking.

FILL UNFORGIVING MINUTE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IN Kipling's famous poem, "If," there occurs the phrase, "the unforgiving minute."

The poet says to the boy he can count himself a man when, among other things, he can "fill the unforgiving minute with sixty seconds' worth of distance run."

This requirement implies two conditions. First a constant application to the work at hand, and second a destination in view.

All motion is not progress. It should be remembered that the poet calls for sixty seconds' worth of distance run.

Just working in life without aim or goal or ideal may keep you moving. It may keep you moving at a lively rate at times. But it is just running on a treadmill.

It isn't filling the unforgiving minute with sixty seconds' worth of distance run; it is just filling it with sixty seconds' worth of running. And there is a big difference between the two.

The distance between them is the distance between failure and success.

The reason Chauncey M. Depew and Charles W. Eliot stand out as big men in American life is not simply because they are of advanced age.

It is because they have lived a long time and also have done something with the years they have had the good fortune to live.

They amount to something besides having the "news value" that comes with unusual age.

They have run a long time and they have been running somewhere.

In London a woman eighty years old is still an active practicing surgeon and performs frequent operations.

The other day in the West a woman over a hundred years old was arrested on her second criminal charge within the year.

Just old age is little to be proud of—the individual is rarely responsible for it—but honorable old age culminating a life of accomplishment is a high distinction.

In the whole of life as well as in each minute you have to run, and you have to run somewhere.

RELATIVE MOTION OF MOVING OBJECTS

By Garrett P. Servis

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

BELOW is one of those ancient questions which has delightedly vexed the quality of never saying answered, like the perennial puzzle about a remarkable car that shoots a projectile at the speed of about 60 miles an hour from a train that is traveling at that same speed.

Doubtless the cavern men who made such wonderful wall pictures of the mammoths, bison and reindeer of their day considered their brains over similar problems of relative motion, as for instance, if a running reindeer at an even speed, and a bison of the speed of the reindeer carrying on in the opposite direction, will the arrow hit my enemy or will I never leave the reindeer?

One might imagine a careful of skin-clad paleoliths, warmly discussing that question while the faint light of the evening fire flickers over the strangely pictured walls, illuminates the women's braided hair, and makes ghostly dance in the gloom depths of the branching cavern.

As far as the motion of the train was concerned he would have where he started to jump, inside closed car there would be no current of air to affect him; on a flat car with no sides or roof he might be swept a trifle rearward by the resistance of the air which did not accompany the train in its motion.

Now, let us look at the question referred to at the beginning: "Kindly settle an argument which has been here in my office, as follows: A claims that if a man were standing in the center of a freight car or a flat car of a fast moving train, and jumped up two or three feet in the air, he would not land in the same place where he was originally standing, but a short distance back. B claims that he would land in the same place where he was originally standing. Who is right? X 26 Broadway, New York."

As far as the motion of the train was concerned he would have where he started to jump, inside closed car there would be no current of air to affect him; on a flat car with no sides or roof he might be swept a trifle rearward by the resistance of the air which did not accompany the train in its motion.

Often Overlooked

A point which seems almost to be overlooked, or misunderstood, in such discussions is the fact that anything that is borne along with a moving car shares the full motion of the car after being separated from it, unless some resistance, like that of the air, opposes.

Let us take the case of the front of the rear end of the car just as the car travels, you neutralize by your muscular effort the forward motion that you shared with the car when standing or sitting still, but with reference to the ground under the car, while you are thus running you do not move at all. If you do not move at all, you cannot move at all.
